STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

This issue of The University of Akron English Department Course Bulletin reflects the efforts on the part of the Department faculty to enrich the Department curriculum. In addition to courses in Shakespeare, English Literature, American literature, and international literature, a wide range of writing and linguistics courses are offered for undergraduate as well as graduate students. Prospective students will find upcoming courses described by the professors who will teach them. These descriptions provide the student with a clearer outline of course content and requirements than can be found in either The University of Akron's General Bulletin or the class schedule bulletin which is issued by the University. Courses are arranged in this Course Bulletin in numerical order. Courses which satisfy the Shakespeare, linguistics, and world/multicultural literature requirements, as well as the minor requirements are identified in the course descriptions. The English faculty hopes this bulletin will be helpful to counselors and students in planning the best possible selection of major courses and electives.

The Department of English requires that students complete freshman composition before enrolling in other English courses. The following courses DO NOT count toward the English major or minor degree requirements: 3300:111; 3300:112; 3300:250; 3300:252; and 3300:281.

Students should consult the English Department advisor about their questions. Graduate students should consult with the Graduate Coordinator.

UNDERGRADUATE CERTIFICATE IN PROFESSIONAL COMMUNICATION

770008C

Joseph F. Ceccio, Ph.D.; Dudley Turner, Ph.D., Co-directors
jceccio@uakron.edu

The program will help meet our technological society's growing need for educated people who can develop sophisticated strategies for effective communication of business and technical information. People in the business community increasingly depend on communication to solve complex management, sales and information processing problems. The communication demands of business and industry are significant, and in many ways, different from those dealt with in traditional courses and majors. This certificate will recognize their preparation for handling the communication needs of business and industry, and must be earned concurrently with an undergraduate (associate or bachelor's) degree. A student who already possesses an undergraduate degree may directly pursue this certificate.

Program Credits

3300:390 Professional Writing I*	3
3300:391 Professional Writing II*	3
7600:309 Public Relations Publications	3
7600:345 Business and Professional Speaking	3

Because all four courses have prerequisites, students should consult course descriptions.

3300:390 and 3300:391 do not have to be taken in sequence*

UNDERGRADUATE CERTIFICATE IN TEACHING ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE

Philathia Bolton, Ph.D, Director, pbolton@uakron.edu

This program is intended for both native and non-native speakers of English who seek training in the teaching of English as a second language (ESL) and wish to obtain an initial qualification to teach ESL/EFL in educational settings other than public schools in Ohio or in countries outside the United States.

The program is designed to introduce the student to central issues in the theory and practice of teaching English to non-native speakers through courses in modern and applied linguistics, in second language pedagogy, and in related disciplines.

Students who do not have English as a native language must demonstrate adequate proficiency in English with a valid TOEFL score of 550 (paper based)/213 (computer based)/79 (Internet based/iBT) or higher, or a valid IELTS score of 6.0 or higher. The awarding of this certificate is not contingent upon completion of a degree program. Undergraduate certificate programs require a 2.00 grade-point average.

- Students admitted with an undergraduate status are required to take 3300:111 English Composition I and 3300:112 English Composition II prior to applying for the certificate.
- All students who wish to pursue the TESL certificate should meet with the program director to discuss the program and availability of courses.
- To apply for the certificate, fill out the "ADD Certificate" form with the certificate advisor. After all requirements are completed, fill out the "Undergraduate Certificate Program Application" with the certificate advisor.

Undergraduate Program: 330003C

GRADUATE PROGRAMS IN ENGLISH

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

The English Department requires for acceptance into the M.A. program a B.A. in English, a minor in English, or other suitable course preparation.

To qualify for full admission, a student must meet the Graduate School requirement of a minimum overall GPA of 2.75 for four years or 3.0 over the last two years.

The application must be completed online at the following website: <https://app.applyyourself.com/?id=uakron-g>. Applicants must request that official transcripts of undergraduate and, if applicable, graduate work be sent to the Graduate School. A nonrefundable application fee is also required. Applications should be received at least six weeks prior to registration, which may occur in the fall, spring, or summer terms. To qualify for provisional admission, the Graduate School requires a minimum overall GPA of 2.5 over four years or 2.75 over the last two years. A student whose GPA falls below 2.75 or who lacks the B.A. in English may be granted deferred admission and given post-baccalaureate status, which is a probationary category.

Applicants to the NEOMFA in Creative Writing must be accepted by the Graduate School at The University of Akron or one of the other three participating universities. They must also submit three letters of recommendation, transcripts, and a writing portfolio. The portfolio will be reviewed by an admissions committee of members from all four universities. Applicants using The University of Akron as a “gateway” school for the MFA must additionally satisfy the requirements for the M.A. program listed above.

For those students admitted to the NEOMFA program, up to nine credits from previously uncompleted graduate degrees may be accepted for transfer credit. Of the nine elective credits, up to six may be from advisor-approved courses not solely restricted to graduate

FINANCIAL AID

Graduate Assistantships

Graduate assistantships in the Department of English are awarded on a competitive basis. Applications for fall appointments will be accepted until March 1. M.A. students may renew assistantships for a second year, and M.F.A. students may renew twice, for a total of three years of support.

Along with the application form and letter of application, applicants for assistantships must submit a clean copy of a writing sample in the form of a typed essay completed in a college course (5-10 pages), two letters of recommendation, and scores from the general section of the Graduate Record Examination. All assistantship application materials must be submitted on paper. Please mail (not email) all materials directly to the Graduate Coordinator in care of the English Department.

The letter of application should address:

- 1) why you are interested in the position
- 2) what prepares you for the position both as far as your work history and academic preparation, and
- 3) how your experiences and interests would contribute to the program’s academic

Two hour exams (essay and identification), a short paper and final required. Satisfies the English major requirement for a course in fiction and in American Literature after 1865. Satisfies the Education requirement for multicultural literature.

389 Sem: Comics in America

3 credit hours

This course will focus on the development of graphic literature from 1890 to the present. Formally, the discussion will explain the growth of graphic literature from single-frame panoramic story, to multi-frame comic strip, to short comic book, and, finally, full-blown graphic novel. From a thematic standpoint, the course will show how different concerns appeared in graphic literature in different periods of American history. The course will show how from 1890 to 1930 some of the first graphic literature, such as and Rudolph Dirks' "Katzenjammer Kids," and Winsor McCay's "Little Nemo" focused on depiction of children and was directed toward America's immigrant population. From about 1930, the focus changed from children to superheroes (Superman, Batman, etc.) and of course the superhero genre remains popular today. However, in the late 1960's and early 1970's there also appeared in the US what are loosely called "Underground Comix." These are the socially relevant and often satirical works such as Harvey Kurtzman's Mad Magazine. Lastly, the 1980's gave rise to what was called the Alternative Comic. These are the graphic novels such as Art Spiegelman's Pulitzer Prize winning Maus books, which focus on such serious themes as the Holocaust. Finally, the course briefly addresses Abstract Comics, largely non-representational art presented in sequence. I argue that, for realism, depth of character study, and formal experimentation, these graphic novels today rival the best fiction by America's finest writers. Satisfies the English major requirement for a course in fiction and in American Literature after 1865.

389 Sem: Detective Fiction

3 credit hours

Detective Fiction will consider the theory and texts of the genre, what Elizabeth Bowen called "fairy tales for adults." Readings will include works by Doyle, Christie, Sayers, Hammett, Moseley, George, and others. Readings include Oedipus Rex, stories of Sherlock Holmes, The Murder of Roger Ackroyd, The Maltese Falcon, Devil in a Blue Dress, An Unsuitable Job for a Woman, and other stories and novels. Course requirements: reading quizzes on each novel or story; a midterm and final; three critical papers which address the text(s) using a specific critical perspective(s). Satisfies the Minor in Popular Literature and Film requirement.

389 Sem: Ethnic Women in Literature

3 credit hours

Begins by exploring the literature of and by women of color, supported by information about personal and social lives in different cultures. Analyzes cultural patterns of communication that advocate socio-political change in order to create a more humane, equitable world. Reading includes six novels. A writing intensive course. Satisfies the English major world/multicultural literature requirement.

389 Sem: Independent Film

3 credit hours

Students will examine movies made outside the establishment Motion Picture Industry system as well as hybrid films made with a combination of independent production and studio assistance. Special focus on how less industry support often results in greater, but also occasionally less, artistic achievement. The history of independent film will be taken into account, but for the purposes of this general overview course we will begin with Easy Rider, widely considered the turning point that brought in the era of modern independent filmmaking. Be prepared to rethink what you currently believe a movie should and can be. Satisfies the Minor in Popular Literature and Film requirement.

Course Descriptions

390 Professional Writing I

3 credit hours

This course, designed to help prepare students for careers as professional business writers, stresses both theory and practice of written communication in the business organization. Emphasis is on individual and group performance. Situations underlying functional writing as well as the special needs of business are illustrated by actual cases. Students learn to adapt style and organization to specific writing purposes and situations through the customary business media of memo, letter, résumé, short report, and long report. Required for the Certificate Program in Professional Communication and the Minor in Professional Writing.

406/506 Chaucer

3 credit hours

This course will provide an introduction to both late medieval England and the works of Geoffrey Chaucer, who has been called the father of English poetry. We'll start by reading a dream vision called The Parliament of Fowls and by learning to read and pronounce Chaucer's Middle English. Then we'll work our way slowly through his masterpiece, The Canterbury Tales. Satisfies the M.A. in Literature requirement for British Literature up to 1660, and the Chaucer requirement if needed. Satisfies the English major requirement for poetry.

425/525 Studies in Romanticism

3 credit hours

This survey of British Romantic literature focuses on important features, events, and moods of the Romantic period. We will examine how writers in the first half of the nineteenth-century influenced our own assumptions about poetry, the imagination, and the natural world. Topics will likely include the Gothic novel, the ballad revival, revolution and rebellion, early feminism, and the sublime. By the end of this course, you will be able to identify major themes, historical shifts, and overlaps between literary movements and to engage critically with texts in class, online, and in formal essays. Satisfies the English major requirement for a course in British Literature after 1800, and for a course in fiction.

430/530 Victorian Poetry & Prose

3 credit hours

This course focuses on authors, genres, and events that impact the poetry, prose and drama of Queen Victoria's reign in England (1837-1901). We will read Charlotte Brontë, Charles Dickens, R.L. Stevenson, and Joseph Conrad alongside the plays of Oscar Wilde and influential poetry of the period. Topics of discussion may include but are not limited to: legacies of Romanticism, the rise of the middle class, urbanization, the Bildungsroman, domesticity, madness and desire, and Gothic hauntings. Satisfies the English major requirements for poetry and for British literature after 1800.

450/550 Modern American Fiction

3 credit hours

Short introductory readings in Marx, Freud and Nietzsche will be followed by close analysis of fiction by Gertrude Stein, Willa Cather, Sherwood Anderson, Nella Larsen, Langston Hughes, Meridel Lesueur, Ernest Hemingway, William Faulkner, John Dos Passos, and Robert Penn Warren. We will also read one play by Eugene O'Neill and view films by Eisenstein and Chaplin. Satisfies the English major requirement for a course in American Literature after 1865 and the M.A. in Literature requirement for American Literature 1865-present.

452/552 Modern American Poetry

3 credit hours

A survey of important American poets of the 20th century. Satisfies the English major requirement for a course in American Literature after 1865, and for a course in poetry.

Course Descriptions

453/553 American Women Poets

3 credit hours

This course explores American poetry through the study of work by a diverse selection of women poets. Satisfies the English major distribution requirements in world/multicultural literature, American literature after 1865, and poetry, as well as the Education requirement for a women writers course.

457/557 Writers on Writing

3 credit hours

Writers on Writing is a course about the writing life, and in this section we will discuss inspiration, process, craft, and revision, and the ways writers develop both individual pieces and an entire body of work. We will read the various texts of this class as practitioners seeking insight on the work of others, as well as our own. In addition to considering the philosophical aspects of being a writer, we will address issues of literary citizenship, and practical topics regarding publishing creative work and remaining productive beyond a degree program. Satisfies the minor in Creative Writing requirement.

466/566 Linguistics & Language Arts

3 credit hours

A foundation course in linguistics with a focus on pedagogical implications for second language (L2) learners. Fundamental concepts in the core of linguistics, including morphology, syntax, semantics, phonetics, phonology, and pragmatics as well as in other fields of linguistics, such as sociolinguistics are covered in lectures and structured linguistic exercises with both English and other languages for contrastive analyses. Satisfies the requirement for graduate and undergraduate students who are pursuing studies in TESL/TESOL.

470/570 History of the English Language

3 credit hours

This course will study the development of our language beginning with its Indo-European origins and moving through Old and Middle English to modern varieties of English. Throughout, we will focus on exploring the mechanisms which produce language change and variety, the social contexts which are associated with historical change in English, and the most salient characteristics of English at different stages in its historical development. Elective for the Certificate in Linguistic Studies and the M.A. in English.

473/573 Theoretical Foundations & Principles of ESL

3 credit hours

This course introduces you to the field of second language acquisition (SLA). It explores theoretical issues and practical principles in language acquisition pertaining to the learning and teaching of a second language. In this course, you will examine the various aspects of first and second language acquisition, become familiar with research methods that are commonly used in SLA and research findings that illuminate the nature of second language learning in general. You will learn the methodological principles for the teaching of English as a second language or a foreign language (ESL/EFL). You will read and present published research on language acquisition, consider the implications of published research for the teaching of ESL/EFL, and collect original data from ESL/EFL learners and write a research paper following the accepted conventions in the field. Satisfies the TESL Certificate requirement.

478/578 Grammatical Structures of Modern English

3 credit hours

Contemporary understanding of English sentence structure. Topics include sentence types, modification and subordination, the roles of the parts of speech, the rhetoric of the sentence, and comparative grammar of dialects. Traditional grammar will be discussed. Elective for the Certificate in Linguistic Studies and the M.A. in Composition.

479/579 Management Reports

3 credit hours

Study of principles and writing practices in effective business style, specialized structure, and purpose

Course Descriptions

for business reports. Satisfies the option for the M.A. in Composition and the Minor in Professional Writing.

489/589 Charles Dickens

3 credit hours

This course traces some of the big moments in Charles Dickens's career from A Christmas Carol (1843) to his final unfinished novel, The Mystery of Edwin Drood (1870). We will examine Dickens's fiction, correspondence, and biography in light of cultural influences including periodical culture, serialization, the Bildungsroman, the prison system, and significant influences of Dickens's contemporaries. Other topics of discussion may include Dickens and the cliffhanger, reality TV, NPR's Serial, and recent Dickensian adaptations such as the film, An Invisible Woman. Students will apply their knowledge of Dickens's fiction and Victorian culture to consider how his work is revived in one contemporary adaptation not included on our syllabus. Satisfies the English major requirement for a course in British Literature After 1800 and for fiction. Satisfies the M.A. in Literature requirement for British Literature 1660-1900.

489/589 Holocaust Literature

3 credit hours

More than sixty years after World War II and the atrocities of the Nazis, poetry, short stories, novels, memoirs and films continue to be produced about that experience. We will examine significant literature that focuses on the Holocaust and those who endured it. Satisfies the English major world/multicultural literature requirement.

489/589 New Poetry

3 credit hours

In this course we will study stylistic and thematic trends in contemporary American poetry. We will read collections of poems by innovative writers, while also exploring new poetry in other publications. Class participation and attendance are essential. Assignments include critical essays and creative mimetic exercises. Satisfies the English major requirement for American Literature after 1865 and the poetry requirement. Satisfies the M.A. in Literature requirement for American Literature 1865-present.

489/589 Shakespeare Text & Performance

3 credit hours

In SHAKESPEARE ON FILM, selected plays are read closely and discussed. Films are shown in class and analyzed, contrasting Shakespeare's play text with the film maker's modern interpretation. Important films screened may include those by contemporary directors such as Zeffirelli, Luhrmann, Radford, Doran, Branagh, and Taymor. Students in all majors are welcome. Especially useful for teachers in schools. Satisfies the undergraduate Shakespeare requirement, the graduate Shakespeare requirement, the graduate requirement for a British literature course before 1660, and the minor in popular literature and film requirement.

489/589 Thoreau, Emerson, and Circle

3 credit hours

An in-depth study of some of the best literature of the American Renaissance. The primary focus will be on Thoreau and Emerson, but we will also study friends and contemporaries such as Channing, Cranch, Douglass, Fuller, and Whitman. Assignments include quizzes, papers, and reviews of scholarship. Satisfies the M.A. in Literature requirement for American Literature up to 1865.

489/589 Tolkien & Lewis

3 credit hours

A study of the literary techniques of J.R.R. Tolkien and C.S. Lewis. In addition to reading the better known stories of Middle Earth and Narnia, students will also delve into shorter, lesser known tales that should be read more widely as well as some wonderful essays by these two trailblazing giants of the fantasist genre. We will also look at the often complicated adaptation of their work for the movies. Together we will be focusing on thematic exploration, how these writers approach certain themes through fictional world-building and how they tackle similar themes through their penetrating essays. We will debate what these writers are saying about society and human nature and how the two's views both differ and compliment each other. An understanding of the fascinating real life friendship between these two writers will compliment our study of their work on the printed page. Whether you are a lifelong enthusiast or know nothing about either author's work does not matter. Our class will avoid the unfair labeling and pigeonholing of Tolkien as a “Fantasy Writer” and Lewis as a “Christian Thinker” so that we can instead dig deeper. Can we ponder and examine the conditions of our own modern times through these two authors’ fictional lenses? Can we ponder and examine greater universal questions and truths beyond their personal perspectives in their essays? Let’s see what we can find on the journey we’ll take together over the course of the semester! Satisfies the undergraduate English major’s requirement for one course in British literature after 1800 or one literature course in fiction. Also satisfies the undergraduate minor in Popular Literature and Film requirement.

489/589 Toni Morrison

3 credit hours

An in-depth study of the work of Nobel Prize winning author Toni Morrison. Focus will be on her major novels. Enrollment by permission of the instructor or senior status. Satisfies the English major departmental world/multicultural literature requirement.

489/589 Young Adult Literature

3 credit hours

There is much debate about young adult literature - what it is and who should or should not read it. In this course, we will consider how these debates have changed over time by tracing the genre’s evolution over the past century. Focusing on first-person narrators entering, immersed in, or about to leave their teenage years, we will examine classic works such as J.D. Salinger’s Catcher in the Rye (1951) and S.E. Hinton’s The Outsiders (1967) alongside contemporary YA novels including Rainbow Rowell’s Eleanor and Park (2013) and E.L. Lockhart’s We Were Liars (2014). Course topics may include the prevalence of violence and dystopia; banned books; trigger warnings; the YA gender divide; and future trends in YA literature. Satisfies the B.A. requirement for a course in American Literature After 1865 and a course in fiction.

489/589 Women’s Writing/Lives

3 credit hours

The seminar will focus on issues raised by the lives of early women writers and by twentieth-century feminist scholarship’s perspectives on these lives. We’ll be reading some of the work of a range of women writing between 1660 and 1800 and investigating their lives. Satisfies the English major departmental world/multicultural literature requirements and Education requirement for a women writers course.

489/589 YA Fiction Writing

3 credit hours

This course is primarily a workshop for creative writers interested in producing a novel-length work of commercial fiction targeting the young adult market. Students will receive intensive critique and ongoing development notes for their projects, as well as individual guidance in plotting, character development, world-building, and dramatic pacing. In addition, through provided reading materials, short craft exercises, and class discussion, students will become increasingly familiar with the genre expectations of readers and publishers; characteristics of the “break-out” novel; the differences between traditional and newer publishing models; the dos and don’ts of querying agents and publishers; as well as the benefits of professional organizations and networking.

492-001 (Spring 2017)

Senior Seminar

3 credit hours

A study of selected fiction, nonfiction, poetry, film, oral history and drama on topics relating to the cultural legacy of the Vietnam War. The syllabus includes works by Graham Greene, Philip Caputo, Norman Mailer, Bobbie Ann Mason, Diana Dell, Wallace Terry, Bao Ninh, Edward Micus, Tim O’Brien. We will also study David Hassler’s new May 4 Voices Play about the 1970 Kent State student shootings and view a production of the play. And we will integrate the most comprehensive anthology of music inspired by the Vietnam War, the recently released Next Stop is Vietnam. Since this is a senior seminar, we will share ideas about the advantages of a liberal arts education and the merits of the English degree. Instructor: Dr. Chura. Limited to senior English majors. Please contact the English Department advisor, Dr. Mary Biddinger at marybid@uakron.edu, to get permission to register for the course.

492-801 (Spring 2017)

Senior Seminar - Revenge & Forgiveness

3 credit

hours

This Senior Seminar focuses on literary depictions of revenge and forgiveness, as well as the cultural meaning and effects of these acts. Through our study of dramas, novels, short stories, and poems, we'll consider presentations of revenge – its perpetrators, victims, and witnesses – in different cultural settings; in addition, we will consider what factors inspire individuals and cultures to set aside vengeful impulses in favor of other forms of justice or even reconciliation. Since this is a senior seminar, we will round out the semester by sharing ideas about liberal arts education and the merits of the English degree. Instructor : Dr. Hillary Nunn. Limited to senior English majors. Please contact the English Department advisor, Dr. Mary Biddinger at marybid@uakron.edu, to get permission to register for the course.

600 Practicum

3 credit hours

Prerequisite: Teaching Assistantship. Principles of teaching composition, designing syllabi, and developing class plans. Includes aligning theory with practice. Limited to teaching assistants in the Department of English.

650 New Rhetorics

3 credit hours

This seminar examines the impact of rhetoric (classical and modern) on the study and teaching of writing. Following the example of Patricia Bizzell and Bruce Herzberg, we will treat rhetoric “as a force in society and a factor in the creation of knowledge, rather than as a technique for stylistic manipulation.” We will read works from such theorists as Plato, Aristotle, St. Augustine, Burke, Weaver, Foucault, Bakhtin, Baudrillard, Habermas, Kristeva, Berlin, Miller, and others. No background in rhetorical theory is required or needed. Required for the M.A. in Composition.

660 Cultural Studies

3 credit hours

This course explores the relationship between Cultural Studies and English Studies, specifically examining the impact of Cultural Studies on the theory, teaching, and practice of textual production and analysis. Elective for the M.A. in Composition.

665 Literary Criticism

3 credit hours

This course explores modern critical theories and methods in literary research. While analyzing representative theorists and critics, members of this seminar will find ways to use concepts of literary theory in their own writing. Satisfies the M.A. in Literature requirement.

673 Theories of Composition

3 credit hours

This course examines the evolution of composition theory, reviewing its milestones and evaluating competing trends. Appropriate for teachers of K-12, post-secondary composition, and those interested in pursuing a Ph.D. No background in composition theory needed. Required for M.A. in Composition.

677 Science Writing (Engineer)

3 credit hours

The course will teach students the essentials of writing scientific discourse, including lab reports, other reports, and similar kinds of documents. Resumes and job letters will be included. Students will also work on English grammar, punctuation, usage, diction, and other conventions of writing. Restricted to graduate students in Polymer Science and Engineering.

679 Scholarly Writing

3 credit hours

Study of composing, analyzing and evaluating academic arguments. Practice in specific forms of academic writing such as reviews of research, articles, and book reviews. Required for the M.S. in biology. Elective for the M.A. in composition.

689 Grad Writing Sem: Poetry (MFA) 3 credit hours

NEOMFA Graduate Writing Seminar: Poetry will focus almost exclusively on student writing, with a significant amount of time dedicated to workshoping. This is a friendly and productive workshop that welcomes both poetry concentrators and students taking the course to fulfill an out of genre requirement. The semester will culminate with each student creating a chap-book of original work. Limited to students enrolled in NEOMFA.

689 Grad Writing Seminar: Fiction (MFA) 3 credit hours

A positive and inviting MFA workshop in fiction writing that gives exclusive attention to the creative work of students enrolled in the course (there are no required texts to purchase and there will only be minimal handouts read in class as a group). Students are provided a manuscript submission schedule that allows for flexible creative output. Working on a focused, specific project? Great! We're excited to see what you're developing. Want to be more exploratory and get some feedback on self-contained short stories or maybe interlinked, connected short fiction, maybe even an idea for the opening of a novel? That's great, too! You will not be creatively constricted in this workshop. Instead, you will be encouraged to take your fiction writing where the creative impulse leads you over the semester. The course includes some minor exposure to fiction writing theory that is covered in short class discussions that will directly assist students with crafting their own original fiction. In addition, students will respond critically and constructively to the work of their peers in building an inspiring, semester-long creative classroom community. Limited to students enrolled in NEOMFA.

689 Craft & Theory: Non Fiction (MFA) 3 credit hours

In this course, we will examine the various uses of the "I" narrator in creative nonfiction, ranging through raw, revealing memoir; first-person reportage; the persona of personal essays; the memoirist who tells another person's story; and others. Students will read and analyze contemporary works and practice the craft of their own first-person nonfiction. Limited to students enrolled in NEOMFA.

689 Psychological Novel 3 credit hours

A close look at the novel as its own unique form of storytelling in literary tradition and history. Students will read both classic and contemporary texts and will be exposed to a plethora of different writers utilizing various techniques and approaches to the novel's construction. Focus on the novel as a form of both personal expression and collective national and cultural identity. Elective for graduate students.

689 Teaching Argument 3 credit hours

Teaching Argument reviews the current theories regarding public and academic argument, differentiates between logic and propaganda, demonstrates effective models for teaching argument to first-year students, and shows the necessity for strong research practices within the digital world in order to create effective arguments.

689 Scholarly Editing and Publishing 3 credit hours

This course is offered in conjunction with the University of Akron Press. Students will learn about the publication cycles of scholarly publishing, from acquisitions through developmental editing, external review, copyediting, design, typesetting, proofreading, and marketing. We'll learn about the current state of print and digital publishing. For coursework, students will have the opportunity to participate in projects that are ongoing at the press. Students will also take up their own project, a small critical edition of an early nineteenth-century American text, to add to the Press's series on Critical Editions in Early American Literature. We'll also study why such publishing initiatives are so important in the study of early American literature at this time. Satisfies the requirement for a course in American literature before 1865.

689 New Directions in the Teaching of Writing 3 credit hours

This course will explore ways to expand the teaching of Composition by engaging new media. In addition to discussing theories of multi-modal writing and public rhetoric, students will practice their own skills by composing a blog, contributing to a wiki, creating a multi-media argument, and collaborating on a community-based writing project. The class will offer a balance of seminar-style discussions and hands-on workshops. No technological expertise is required. Elective for the M.A. in Composition.

689 O'Connor & Malamud 3 credit hours

Postwar Voices: O'Connor & Malamud: After WWII it was still possible to make money selling stories to magazines; at the same time, writers were forgoing of the short story a new art form. Key collections reshaped the nature and aim of short fiction, foremost among them, O'Connor's A Good Man Is Hard to Find, and Malamud's The Majic Barrel, Salinger's Nine Stories, Baldwin's Going to Meet the Man, and Updikes' Pigeon Feathers. Though diverse, these writers shared something of a common visions; special attention to O'Connor and Malamud. Expect a combination of papers to equal twenty pages. 689 Poe & Hawthorne 3credit hours

An in-depth study of two major writers of American romantic literature, each of whom played a significant role in the Americanization of gothic fiction. Students will read selected literary criticism of each author, some poetry of Poe, an assortment of the short fiction of each author, Poe's only novel (The Narrative of Arthur Gordon Pym), and three of Hawthorne's four novels (The Scarlet Letter, The House of the Seven Gables, and The Blithedale Romance). Quizzes, student presentations, one short essay, one longer essay. Satisfies the M.A. in Literature requirement for American Literature up to 1900.

689 Responding to Student Writing 3 credit hours

This course will familiarize students with the key scholarship regarding instructor's response to student writing. Students in this course will apply knowledge derived from the theories and research we read. Further, we will study appropriate grading criteria, especially as located in the framing of essay assignments. Elective for the M.A. in Composition.

689 Willa Cather 3 credit hours

With her prairie novels, a fascination with the Southwest, that decade spent working in Pittsburgh, and the major portion of her life lived in New York's Greenwich Village, Will Cather is a writer of many regions. Documenting the imaginative life of America in the first half of the twentieth century as well as her own personal journey through this period, she created some of literature's most engaging male and female characters in a style both beautiful and utilitarian. Her work embodies a life, a time, and a magnificent legacy we ought to study. Satisfies the M.A. in Literature requirement for American Literature 1865-present.

Student Groups

The Literary Guild & The Upstart Crows

The Literary Guild is a group of graduate and undergraduate students from many majors who are interested in literature and share a common love for the written word. The Literary Guild sponsors a reading group and a writing group, dubbed The Upstart Crows, which hosts “open mic” poetry nights, travels to see plays performed in Akron and Cleveland, and engages in a variety of other intellectual and social activities throughout the year. New members from all majors are always welcome.
