

Keep your coverage, wherever life takes you

Group Term Life And Accidental Death & Dismemberment (AD&D) Insurance

Portability or conversion allows you to continue your Life Insurance and/or AD&D coverage when they would otherwise end.

If a primary wage earner died:

34% of households would have immediate trouble paying everyday living expenses.¹

Only 37% could cover everyday living expenses well into the future.²

What happens to your coverage if you leave your job or retire?

You have Unum's Group Term Life Insurance for a good reason — in the event something should happen to you, you want your family to stay financially afloat. That's where portability comes in. It means that you can continue your coverage — at group rates — when the coverage would otherwise end.

What are the features of portability?

- You can have coverage for yourself, your spouse and your dependents.
- Spouse and dependent child coverage is only available if your employer's Group Life plan included dependent coverage.
- If you die or experience a family status change such as divorce while covered under the portability plan, your dependents can continue the insurance coverage as long as the premium is paid.

What are the features of conversion?

- You can convert your Life coverage to an individual policy.

What are the coverage limits?

- You can apply for up to the lesser of five times your salary or your employer's plan maximum.

- The combination of all of your Unum Group Life Insurance and AD&D plans cannot exceed $750,000.
- You can apply for more coverage than you already have if you wish to complete evidence of insurability, which includes a medical history form or a physical exam.
- Your spouse's insurance can also be increased with evidence of insurability; however, this coverage cannot exceed your coverage amount or the employer's plan maximum.
- Dependent coverage may be available and benefit amounts vary by state.

How much does coverage cost?

- The group rate table in effect at the time you are approved for portability will determine the premium rate.
- If you were previously using a composite rate (one rate for all ages), a five-year age-banded table will be used.
- If your spouse's rate under the employer's plan was a composite or unit rate, appropriate age-banded rates will also be used for your spouse.
- As your age increases and you change age bands, your premium will be adjusted on the next anniversary of your portability coverage.

3 ways to pay your bill

- quarterly
- semi-annually
- annually

THIS OFFER IS AVAILABLE FOR A LIMITED TIME ONLY.

Election forms received more than 90 days after the date your coverage ends will not be processed.

Plan for the future

Your plans for the future — perhaps buying a home or paying for your children's college education — depend on a certain amount of financial security.

If you die, you would not want your family to be financially burdened. That's why Life Insurance is such an important benefit.

And that's why portability and conversion are such valuable features of Unum's Group Term Life Insurance. Wherever your career takes you, whenever you choose to retire, you can keep your important coverage and the quality service that Unum provides.
