Robert C. Schwartz, School of Counseling Professor and College of Health Professions Interim Associate Dean, published a noted national journal article with two colleagues at Kent State University. The article provided practical guidelines for mental health clinicians working with first responders (police, emergency management personnel, etc), as these vital members of our society who serve vulnerable persons also often share significant mental health consequences of their own job experiences.

The full citation is: